

Safe, ethical, sustainable and individual learning solutions for you and your horse, donkey or mule

Talks and lectures

Talks to equine clubs and organisations can range from a two-hour evening talk, to a 4 hour lecture demonstration. The aim of a tailor made talk is to provide the theory of the chosen topic and increase the understanding of listeners in a relaxed light-hearted and informal way. All talks are tailor made to individual requirements. Evening theory talks start at £40 per hour plus travel. Outside the South West evening talks combined with home visits or other educational events are most cost effective.

Training for Animal welfare organisations, businesses and charities

If you employ staff that you feel would benefit from learning about equine behaviour then a tailor made program can be created to suit your individual organisation and environment. The benefits of this type of programme include increased health and safety, team building, better understanding of behaviour so creating less stress to animals, more efficient training of equines while your business creates a more professional service.

Training for individual animals or advice on the training and dealing with behaviour problems in larger groups of equines.

Generally held at your premises to fit in around daily work-loads and routines the contents of training can meet specific areas of concern or training shortfalls.

Hart's Horsemanship

Equine Behaviour Training for Horses, Donkeys and Mules

Details for hosting a workshop

Facilities

A clean space, with sufficient room for all participants to comfortably do the theory, which is safe, warm, dry with a socket for a kettle (I'll provide the tea, coffee, biscuits and sweets.) is essential to the success of the workshop. There needs to be facilities for attending horses to be safe and comfortable during the workshop and an area to work with the horses that the participants can view. Ideally we need an indoor school or work area if the workshop is in the wetter colder winter months, during the rest of the year we can risk an outdoor area. Other than that we can discuss the suitability of each individual venue.

People can attend with or without a horse. There is no extra charge for horses, unless the venue charges a fee for overnight horse accommodation, which is negotiated between the horse owner and the proprietors of the venue. Suitable horses for the workshop can be discussed before the date as we do not generally take horses with chronic behavioural issues on workshops as it is not the best environment for horse or owner to work on their problems.

Posters and flyers can be provided and any additional advertising can be discussed.

Cost per person £140 for the two days (minimum of 6 participants) A deposit of £40 is required in advance to secure each place. Organisers of workshops can receive a half price place if there are seven paying participants, 75% off their place for 8 paying participants or a free place if there are nine or more paying participants.

If you feel you have access to suitable facilities and wish to discuss the possibilities further, email me with venue details and location, and which months you would like to consider holding a workshop. I will then call you to discuss your requirements and finalise dates. Please feel free to contact me to discuss any questions or special requirements you may have.

Do poor communication, bad timing and misunderstandings frustrate you and hold you and your horse back from reaching your potential? Do you want to become more authentic and sustainable in your communications with everyone around you?

Principled Centred Training

By teaching people how to think not what to think Hart's Horsemanship allows each course participant to develop their own potential. I work with long term sustainable principles that means you have quality training and learning opportunities you can trust to deliver what you want and in a way you need.

To discuss your individual requirements, call or click
Email: benhart@hartshorsemanship.com
www.hartshorsemanship.com
Phone: 07775657424